Comparison of a methane superacid with 1-acetylnaphthalene. Femtosecond resolution and large-amplitude vibrational wave packet dynamics were used to explore the superacid capacity of the methane solvated electron system Me(3)NCH(3)Cl and to locate the nucleophile. Ab initio dynamics of Me(3)NCH(3)Cl (isomeric forms and C(2) symmetrical) in the 0-10 Å range revealed that the nucleophile travels over a complex potential surface that consists of two upper wells, one of which corresponds to electron transfer. These results and the calculated character of the potential surface agree well with previous theoretical work and are consistent with the experimentally determined capacity of the superacid solvent Me(3)NCH(3)Cl for the nucleophilic addition of diazomethane. The superacid Me(3)NCH(3)Cl is much more efficient than methane superacid (1-acetylnaphthalene) in the solvolysis of diazomethane, and the nucleophile is the most stable of the species in the potential surface.Q: About "extends in Scala", what is difference between "extends and override" or "extends and new"? What is difference between extends and override in class definition? I think both of these definition do same job. class Rectangle extends Shape { public void draw() { // Some code... } class Shape { public void draw() {

To assess the expression of lymphangiogenic and angiogenic growth factors in the blood and gingival crevicular fluid (GCF) of periodontitis patients. Lymphangiogenic and angiogenic growth factors VEGF, VEGF-C, VEGF-D, and VEGF-R2 were examined by enzyme-linked immunosorbent assay (ELISA) in GCF and blood samples from 32 patients with aggressive (n = 16) and chronic (n = 16) periodontitis, and 20 healthy controls (H). Patients with aggressive periodontitis were significantly older than patients with chronic periodontitis (P ba244e880a
