Windows 7/8/10 External links Category:Utilities for WindowsBen: So, my grandfather was a pilot, and so I was fascinated by planes from an early age. I think I could recognize my grandfather's sense of humor, which was being rebellious. I think, as a child, I rebelled against my own sort of monastic existence. Maybe this is why I've gravitated to working in this art form. PA: You've just signed with Sub Pop. What have you been listening to as you prepare for a new release? Ben: I've been listening to a lot of stuff. I started out listening to Rich Mullins because he is just the most amazing songwriter, and I also grew up on [Carole King], The Kinks, Neil Young. I think, like any kid, my parents would drive me crazy [laughs]. It was just a gateway drug. PA: How did Sub Pop reach out to you? Ben: They know a guy who's helping out a friend of mine on a project called Electric MAK Productions, and they just told me, "Hey, you know this great guy," and that was it. PA: Right on. You're going to play East Coast dates during your summer headlining tour. What does that feel like to you? Ben: This is just the beginning. I'm playing with The Meat Puppets II, who are one of my favorite bands of all time. I mean, they're just a power trio; it's just incredible. All of their songs are incredible, and they're just such nice people. Just being able to sit at the same table as them and talk to them is just really rad.Q: Feeding damaged links to Nutch I have a question about feeding damaged links to Nutch. Let's say I have a link: If I run Nutch on the above data, it will fail as post 1.htm is not a valid link, but is it possible to feed
