When I was browsing around the app. I stumbled across an app.js file in the Telerik.Web.UI.dll file. After viewing this file in the visual studio 2010 explorer, I noticed there is a script file in the project, what was called app.js. Is the app.js file the same as the one in the Telerik.Web.UI.dll? How do the 2 differ? A: The.js file in the Telerik.Web.UI.dll is just a JavaScript file that is included in the page. This page is compiled into a single file which is named app.js. The file app.js in the app.js file has a property of the script type defined by the scriptType attribute. These attributes can be
