Thanks. In the first part of this article we discuss what you need to be aware of before using any sorting method. In the next part we discuss sorting algorithms and their usage, before ending with a comparison of some popular solutions in various situations. Sort vs Sort & Sort First things first, sorting is different from sorting and sorting is different from sorting. When you type "sorting" in the internet search, you are most likely going to find several software solutions that are referred to as sorting. However, sorting is a part of a bigger process, that is called sorting. Let's say that you need to sort an array of numbers, the sorting algorithm sorts the array in ascending order. An additional term is sort, which can be considered a verb, as in, "sorting" is often used as a verb. When you sort, you are arranging the data in an order, while if you sort, you are using the data in order to do something else. You can sort a list of names alphabetically, or you can sort an array of numbers to see the first value, the second value, and so on. There are two types of sorting. Ascending and Descending. You can sort a list of numbers alphabetically, or you can sort the numbers by descending value. If you have an array of strings, then you can sort the strings
