The system is broken and is intended to make money for Dave McAfee and Dave Cuthbertson who are also advertisers on the site. The site was developed by and for the music industry and the reason the records actually suck is because few people have rights to their music. The relationship between record companies and their artists is broken. The artists get screwed over and the record company gets its profit. I hate the music industry and want to see it burn. NEW Version 1.6 is Released! - Corrected bug on Blackberry 5 (9) - Improved support for Blackberry 6. The best piece of advice I've ever been given: Instead of waiting until you run out of money to start saving, start saving as soon as you're willing to give up something - anything you can do without. Pick one thing you do that you hate doing, or that you don't enjoy doing... it might be sweeping the floor, sweeping the car, cleaning the kitchen, answering the phone, or even vacuuming. If you hate doing this, then you've only half of the battle won. Pick something that's easy to change or avoid, like not answering the phone. Every time you do this, you'll be saving money. It's as easy as brushing your teeth if you've been trying to save money, your best bet is to start small - even if just $5 a week, it's better than nothing. With the tools I use, I can track my money, and easily see if I'm on target. This app will track money, whether you're paying off debts or saving. In addition to your regular expenses, this app will track your spending, and send you a weekly email report which will help you check whether you're on track to meet your short term and long term goals. If you run into trouble, you can contact an expert to help you out. • View all of your expense transactions as a monthly report • View a weekly report for easy comparison • Analyze your debt using the professional debt reduction tools from David Bach (www.fin)
