Q: Pass node iterator in Spark to Python I know how to pass a Python iterator object in Python to Spark. How can I do this for a Scala iterator? `val rdd2 = someOtherRdd.map(f => f).collect()`
`sc.parallelize(List[Iterable[Int]].fill(rdd2.count())).foreach(iter => { iter.map(someFunction) iter.map(anotherFunction) })`
In Python, I would do it using something like this: `rdd2.pyj().foreach(iter => someFunction(iter))`
A: Python API is a thin layer above JVM API. When you call the Scala RDD methods, they internally go through the Python API. (The RDD object types in Spark are all Scala data types, not Python objects). So in a way you can access Scala RDDs in Python API just as you do RDDs in Scala. To see that in action, for example, check this code in Python:
`val inputRDD: RDD[Double] = sc.parallelize(Array(1.0, 2.0, 3.0, 4.0), 2) print (inputRDD.map(x => x * 2))` or in Spark: `import org.apache.spark.rdd.RDD val inputRDD: RDD[Double] = sc.parallelize(Array(1.0, 2.`
