Although Photoshop Elements is designed to compete against alternatives like GIMP and Paint.NET, there are more than 3,000 features that are only available in Elements. In this tutorial, we will learn how to add text to images. You will learn how to add text anywhere on an image, how to change its size, opacity and color, and how to add effects to it, such as shadow, reflection, gradient, and blur. You will also learn how to add a gradient background color and a drop shadow to your text. You will learn to create a watermark on images and add it in many different ways. You will learn how to create a vignette effect, how to add borders and backgrounds, and how to make images rounder. Let's start. Adding Text to Images STEP 1 Let's start by creating a new image with black background and add a photo. Open the Photoshop Elements app and create a new photo, don't worry about the size. Next, click on the text tool. Click on your image, hold Alt/Option on your keyboard and drag it over your photo. Now you can see your text has been added over the photo. STEP 2 If you want to have a text layer over the photo, you need to click on Layer > New > Layer. STEP 3 Double-click on the image layer to open the Layers panel. Now you can see you have three layers. Drag the background layer down and arrange it. You can also do this with keyboard shortcuts. Select an image layer, press G, and delete the background layer. Now you can see you have the image and a layer above the image. STEP 4 As we can see, the background layer is of the same color as the image background, while the text layer is color-managed. Let's color-manage it. Click on the background layer to open the Layer Style panel. Double-click on the Background layer. Change the Blend Mode to Screen. This way you can control the Screen Mode's opacity and color. Then set the Color to white and change the opacity to 80%. If you hover on the text layer, you'll see its color has changed to a 05a79cecff

On September 15, B.I talked about his future with iKON and said, "I'm currently preparing as the MC. I'm trying my best to actively communicate with each individual member while being careful not to upset them." The idol remarked, "My goal is always to be the first priority when we go to set, the first priority when we eat, and the first priority when we sleep. I want to be the one who always keeps our morale up while we're working." B.I talked about the different experiences he had during the last two years, saying, "Because of my experiences, I want to show a different side of myself and bring out a new image. I want to meet more people with a different mindset, and put in more effort." He added, "Instead of having things planned ahead of time, I like to be spontaneous. When you try to do that, you also have to think quickly on your feet. I'm trying to think like that now. If I were to look back, I'd tell myself that I put in no effort." Meanwhile, iKON
