Q: How to translate the following statement? I have never seen this kind of statement in english, can you help me translate it? "A man will live or die by the number of women he has slept with." I think it will be something like "A person will live or die by the number of women they have slept with. But i don't know how to put his name in between. The meaning of it is A man will die or live by the amount of women he has seduced. A: You are correct in that you don't need his name in between The statement can also be phrased in a way that suggests the opposite: He'll live if the number of women is low He'll die if the number of women is high. Q: Modify content of div with php How can I modify this page? I don't know the php syntax. I know how to modify this page in a static way(without php). I want to add a class to the and the
