Photoshop has many tools for manipulating and creating images. Some popular tools you can find on any website that teaches Photoshop are the following: Avedon: www.npedx.com/Avedon/ Avedon allows you to quickly change colors in images and create images from a variety of types of frames. It has many high-end effects, including the ability to create a print from a picture. You can do a lot with Avedon to make sure the color contrast and black-and-white levels are correct. Layerify: www.layerify.com/ Layerify allows you to create more than one layer in a single image. This tool is similar to the Photoshop function that does the same thing, called transparency. This program has an easy interface with which you can create layers by using points, select from a palette, or copy and paste. Pixlr: www.pixlr.com/ This website has free and paid versions of Pixlr, a drawing program that lets you use your mouse to draw on the image and create "layers" using transparency. You can erase the parts of the image that you choose to remove and replace the parts that you want to remain. However, the free version limits you to a certain number of layers per image and no more than 250 pixels of the total image for layers. Online editing tools such as these are great to quickly test the usefulness of images. ## Using Adobe Bridge Bridge is the Adobe program that includes all the functions that Photoshop has. For instance, Bridge allows you to fix, enhance, touch up, or even create many different kinds of images. Bridge is also used to create websites, build e-books, and create a variety of print products. With Bridge, you can create Web content on any device as long as the device allows you to view the site in a browser. Bridge is primarily focused on image editing. You can make changes to the image as you edit, such as changing the size, color, and format. As you make the changes, you can see the results right in the Bridge window. You can even make changes to the photo's brightness, contrast, and contrast ratio. You can view, organize, and rate your images in a separate folder that is called the `_Finder_`. This folder displays your photos along with the date and time they were
