Category:..The present invention relates to a sputtering target and a method for producing the same. In particular, the present invention relates to a multi-layered sputtering target and a method for producing the same. A sputtering target is used for manufacturing a variety of electronic devices, such as semiconductors, metal components, and protective films. In recent years, a demand for a multi-layered sputtering target has been increasing, in order to improve the properties of such electronic devices as the efficiency of electrical power, and miniaturization and high density of the electronic devices. In order to improve various properties of electronic devices, improving the properties of electronic devices, such as electrical power efficiency and the heat-dissipation property, is needed. In order to improve the electrical power efficiency, it is important to improve the film characteristic, such as its reflectance and resistivity, as well as the film uniformity. In order to improve the heat-dissipation property, a higher surface roughness is required. For this purpose, a higher total thickness of the target is required, and the target can be produced by simultaneous multiple laser melting on the sputtering target. There has been known, for example, a method of producing a large-size, multi-layered sputtering target with a density of about 90 to 98% by weight by simultaneously melting and solidifying a large plurality of layers with a diameter of 20 mm or more by laser beam scanning, containing the steps of scanning the laser beam on a

Designed by Dr. This section provides background information related to the present disclosure which is not necessarily prior art. Methods for treating viral or bacterial infection, especially for treatment of chronic infections such as gonorrhoea, have been evolving. Such infection, such as gonorrhoea, may be treated with tetracycline or other anti-microbial therapy, sometimes in combination with administration of ceftriaxone.

Notwithstanding the progress made in treatments for such viral or bacterial infection, further advances in treatment modalities, or treatment methods, would be a welcome advance.

Q: Relational Algebra; EXISTS expression in SELECT statement How can I use the EXISTS expression in the SELECT statement in the way that I'm doing below?

Table1 Person_id 1 2 3 4 Table2 Model_id 1 2 3 4 Table1 and Table2 are linked by an ID in Table1 to the Model_id in Table2. So, I need a list of all the IDs of the persons who own a car and who have a glass (exists) in the Model_id in Table2. SELECT t1.person_id FROM Table1 AS t1 INNER JOIN Table2 AS t2 ON t1.model_id = t2.model_id WHERE EXISTS (SELECT * FROM Table2 AS t2 WHERE t1.person_id=t2.person_id AND t2.model_id='2') This is the SQL statement I'm trying to make work. I'm getting an error that says "Operand should contain 1 column(s)" on the EXISTS. Anyone see a better way to go about this? A: EXISTS has a different syntax than a simple query. You would use it as: SELECT t1.person_id FROM Table1 t1 WHERE EXISTS (SELECT * FROM Table2 WHERE t1.person_id = t2.person_id
