Real-time Impact of a Player's Technique The HyperMotion Technology uses the motion capture data to affect players' movement and interactions with the ball. For example, the player can lean and nudge the ball with the direction of their movement. To improve the gameplay experience, the HyperMotion Technology uses the data it collects from players to simulate an impact of a player's technique, for example, while a player makes a goal-scoring run. FIFA 22 features the most realistic off-ball movements to give you an even better view of the game with enhanced player positioning. FIFA Ultimate Team FIFA Ultimate Team lets you create and play your own custom teams, compete with clubs in leagues around the world, and upgrade and enhance them with over 1,000 players, kits, and other unique items, as well as more than 100 authentic playing styles based on top clubs and athletes. Now you can create and share your very own REAL Player of the Match highlights on social networks with #PlayerOfTheMatch. Improved Real-Time Player Interactions FIFA 22 includes the most comprehensive set of contextual off-ball actions for players, while also introducing an unprecedented depth of player information. Better understanding of players' positions, actions and movements in the real-time game builds a more realistic game experience. New Skill Actions FIFA 22 players can now use the most realistic off-ball skills with the new contextual context-based off-ball actions, including volleys, one-timers, lobs, headers, pushups, drills and many more, replicating actual player techniques. FIFA 22 introduces a new contextual off-ball skills set including volleys, one-timers, lobs, headers, drills, pushups and more. FIFA Live FIFA Live on PlayStation 4 includes the most comprehensive set of contextual off-ball actions with contextual dribbling and shooting during high-speed passes. You'll be able to run, cut-back, dribble and shoot with the best players in the world and make every shot count. (Please note the FIFA Live SDK preview will be released for use for the first six months after FIFA 22 launches on September 14th, 2018.
