The developer then analyzes this data with motion-capture cameras and combines it with an AI-powered 3D player likeness to accurately animate and morph into any player, in any role. You'll be able to customize your creation to suit your playing style by choosing from thousands of possible player archetypes. Once you've chosen your player archetype and role, you can customize his look, hair, and skin tone to get the exact look you're looking for. Together, our 3D models, animations and animations allow you to create a truly immersive football experience — that's made even more captivating thanks to the addition of authentic player reactions to every challenge, tackle, pass, shot and goal. In the new 3D player animation system, every player's performance statistics are recorded in real-time and his individual attributes, strengths, and weaknesses are available for the player creator to incorporate into his artificial creation. It's essential that the developers have a clear understanding of each player's skill set and attributes, as they can be used to drive the creation process. For example, most players will have more speed in their attributes than physicality, while some players have the opposite attributes. Once a player is created, he can be used as a template to generate any number of multiple player archetypes and roles in FIFA 22. As a player creator, we're providing an extensive range of customization options that allow you to produce a multitude of different player archetypes and roles. You'll also have the ability to choose from a huge variety of kits, equipment, logos and transfers. FIFA 22 is set to include an exclusive range of playable female characters, all of which will be available as in-game or career mode characters. The game will also feature new stadiums and spaces to play matches in, and you'll be able to adjust your pitch views to suit any of them. A big part of FIFA 22 is the addition of more realistic crowds, both for matches and in free play. These crowds will react to the situation at hand, support their favorite team and cheer, boo or jeer their opponents, and more. They'll also get animated when the action heats up. Each match in FIFA 22 will have a different scenario and feel, with both home and away stadiums, and will feature key objectives and stages.
