It's free, available for Windows computers, and, in some cases, smartphones. If you decide to subscribe, you'll receive access to all future updates and releases. In the last year, Adobe made some huge updates to Photoshop that included things like the Blur Gallery, Camera Raw and Lens Correction tools, and a plethora of new features. Here are some of the top new features added to Photoshop in 2019.

1. Blur Gallery Adobe Photoshop's Lens Correction tools work great for most people. However, there are some people who find the whole process too complicated. But an interface change brings some fixes. In the new version, you'll see a much simpler view of your filters. It won't be as detailed as the old filters, but it will let you do all of the adjustments quickly. You'll find the new Blur Gallery tool in the Lens Correction menu. The Blur Gallery lets you remove lens distortion from pictures with more ease than ever. When you're editing the settings, you'll see how each tool affects the image. You can remove blur without affecting other elements, and also without leaving blur on your photo. There are several different blur types included, including Gaussian Blur, Partial Blur, and Defocus Blur. This allows you to choose the best type of blur for the image. The new Blur Gallery also includes a Chromatic Aberration tool for reducing or removing flares.
2. Camera Raw Improvements The Camera Raw interface had a few improvements throughout the year. One of the biggest was how you can now highlight photo processing techniques. In older versions of Photoshop, you needed to scroll across several pages and slide the sliders to get different changes. Now, you can pick the changes you want to make and then click Apply to make the adjustments. You can even reverse the adjustments you made to a photo. Click the Undo button to undo all of the changes. The new Camera Raw interface makes it easier to edit photos. There are other improvements in the Camera Raw interface. You can now pan through photos to compare different adjustments. For example, you can compare the effects of different adjustments in a single image. You can change the size and position of the photo while the background will retain its original image. Another new feature is HDR 05a79cecf

Long-term outcomes for obese patients undergoing laparoscopic gastric bypass: results from the Swedish Obesity Treatment Program. The Swedish Obesity Treatment Program (SOTP) includes a series of randomized controlled clinical trials (RCTs). To report longer-term results from RCTs with 3 and 4 years follow-up. RCTs were stratified by sex and randomized to a sleeve gastrectomy (SG) or a laparoscopic Roux-en-Y gastric bypass (LRYGB) approach. Primary outcome was excess weight loss (EWL) at 3 years in both men and women. Secondary outcomes were EWL at 4 years and incidence of major adverse events (MACE). A total of 4,011 subjects were randomized to SG or LRYGB. Compared to SG, LRYGB patients had lower incidences of intraoperative complications (P or =5 units of blood (P or =50% in the LRYGB group (P = 0.009). This study demonstrates that although SG and LRYGB have similar short-term results, LRYGB had a higher rate of EWL > or =50% at 4 years compared with SG. The reduction in staple line complications may translate into improved long-term quality of life in LRYGB patients. The Rugby Football Union has received applications from five overseas clubs to join the English Premiership, it has been announced. Applicants in the form of clubs from Argentina, Japan, Scotland, Wales and Samoa had competed in a trial against elite English teams. Liam Tierney, the RFU's head of elite development, told BBC Radio 5 Live: "The trial was very competitive. They've gone away and they've come back and they've done a lot of work to develop some really top class players. The final decision came down to international form and their ability to field teams to compete with the best. "The time it took to make a decision meant that we couldn't commit to a definite outcome for our international-based clubs. We talked about this in a board meeting two weeks ago and, while we didn't make any final decisions, it did give us a very good steer as to what the future would hold. "We would not normally start an application process for overseas clubs as it's a very competitive market." Tierney said the RFU is in regular dialogue with the English Premiership and has made it clear that overseas clubs wanting to join the Aviva Premiership would have to be willing to bid for UK broadcast rights as well as ground and training contracts. "Since England returned to the top flight after relegation in 2003, there has been a huge growth in the level of competition, and so there have been a host of other clubs from around the world wanting to come in. "The top flight of six teams isn't big enough to accommodate more – it is at least five teams for the next couple of years and with that ambition we wanted to make sure we had the strongest possible quality competition at the top of the sport, which wasn't going to happen if we had eight or nine teams. "We wanted to make sure we were able to have that potential star names in the future and, ultimately, we would love to see some of the overseas sides compete alongside the best domestic sides." Tierney said the RFU would have the same levels of access to the English Premiership clubs as other elite unions have. "The English Premiership clubs have regular access to the international market," he said. "That is the advantage we bring, in our being able to provide access to the overseas market
