Two hundred tuberculosis (TB) patients enrolled in their second- or third-line anti-TB treatment were enrolled in this study to determine if their level of utilization of anti-TB care was different than that of a population of TB patients not enrolled in therapy. Data were gathered from the patients' medical charts regarding demographics, HIV status, anti-TB treatment and pretreatment diagnostic procedures. The survey demonstrated that the utilization of anti-TB care for these TB patients in China was consistent with guidelines, and that there were no differences in the utilization rates between those who were HIV positive and those who were HIV negative ($p > 0.05$).It has a focus on both sides of the ball, and will help get Bulldog football back in the driver's seat in the in-state series. The New England Patriots get their first chance at defending the Super Bowl at home on Sunday against the Kansas City Chiefs. What happened to the Carolina Panthers last year? The Patriots thrashed them with Brady throwing for five touchdowns, and with Willie Mays-like catches by Julian Edelman. What happened to the Seahawks? The Patriots beat them handily with an average of 5.8 yards per play, as their defense dominated. So, the Patriots have found a way to get better each season, and this is their eighth straight win. There is a difference between winning the "meaningless" game in week 17, and winning the game with playoffs on the line, as the Patriots find themselves in. There are four undefeated teams in the league, and the Patriots are, as of right now, undefeated. What if they don't win this game? Their season is over, but will it be over for good? Why the Patriots stand a chance Suffering loss
